

The Qu'Appelle Progress.

Vol. VIII.

QU'APPELLE, N. W. T., THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1893.

No. 25.

QU'APPELLE.

R. MOLLAY, Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Qu'Appelle Station, Assn.

A. HOLLINGSHEAD, House, Sign and Carriage Painter, Graining, Glazing, Paper Hanging and Estimating promptly executed.

A. C. PATTERSON, Real Estate Agent, Desirable Farm Lands for Sale. Office at the Progress Printing Office.

CITY MEAT MARKET. Fresh Meat of all kinds kept constantly on hand, lowest prices. W. H. BULL, Proprietor.

D. R. C. E. CARTHEW, Qu'Appelle, Physician, Surgeon, Coroner Etc. Graduate Toronto University and Licentiate College Physicians and Surgeons, Ont.

G. S. DAVIDSON, Licensed Auctioneer, For the North-West Territories. Sales conducted on the shortest notice. Arrangements can be made at my Office, or at the Progress Office, Qu'Appelle.

J. P. BEAUCHAMP, General Merchant.

C. J. EDWARDS, general dealer in Agricultural Implements, Threshing Machines, Carriages, Cattle, Grain Crushers, Pumps, etc.

QUEEN'S HOTEL, Messrs. WATSON & BARNES, Props.

R. JOHNSTON, Livery and Feed Stable, Daily Stage to Fort Qu'Appelle.

A. D. DICKSON, Barrister, Advocate, Solicitor, etc.

Office, first door north of the Queen's Hotel, Qu'Appelle St.

W. M. SMITH, Advocate, Notary Public, Collections and Real Estate Agent.

W. T. THOMPSON, P. E. S., Dominion Land Surveyor, and Civil Engineer, Authorized Surveyor for collecting Field Surveys and Plans, Qu'Appelle Station.

R. E. SMITH, QU'APPELLE STATION.

SHAVING SALOON. Ordered Clothing a Specialty.

Joseph Sheiford BLACKSMITH.

BOB SLEIGHTS AND JUMFERS. Of all kinds made to order. Repairs of every description executed with promptitude. FLOW CHAINS MADE TO ORDER.

CREAMER BROS., Veterinary Surgeons, OF REGINA, HAVE

Opened an Office in Qu'Appelle, And may be found there constantly to treat all diseases of animals.

We are now prepared to do job work equal to any office west of Winnipeg, and at prices that will satisfy anyone requiring work done in our line.

The "Progress" Office, QU'APPELLE.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY

The Favorite Line.

Quickest and best route to all points East, West and South.

The only line carrying passengers to the east and west without change of cars and reaching all the important cities of the American Continent, and with direct steamship connections to Europe, China and Japan.

Unequalled advantages for looking passengers to the Old Country.

TO YOKOHAMA AND HONG KONG: Empress Japan leaves Vancouver April 24 Empress China " May 15 Empress India " June 5 And about every four weeks thereafter.

For full information apply to E. W. WARD, Agent, Qu'Appelle, or to ROBERT F. KELLY, General Passenger Agent, Winnipeg.

NORTH-WEST MANUFACTURE.

SLEIGHTS.

JUMFERS.

CUTTERS.

BUCKBOARDS.

HARROWS.

IRON FOR SALE.

COAL FOR SALE.

BOLTS.

NUTS.

AXLES, LIGHT OR HEAVY.

HORSE SHOEING.

GENERAL JOBBING.

James McEwen, Qu'Appelle.

FRANK AMAS

Has been appointed

District Agent for Brown Bros.,

Continental Nurseries,

Toronto.

A FULL LINE OF FRUIT AND

SHRUBS CARRIED.

Order now for 1894. Prices the lowest in the market.

J. B. HAWKES,

MERCHANT,

BALCONIE,

Has just received a

Car of good Flour

FROM MOOSOMIN MILLS.

Which he will sell cheap for cash, or trade

it for No. 1 Hard Wheat at best prices going, and more care will follow.

J. H. MACCAUL,

Door & Window

Frames

In all sizes ready to be put for sale.

LUMBER

AND

BRICK.

General Insurance Agent.

2000 Rolls New

WALL PAPER

HAVE ARRIVED.

BEAUTIFUL PATTERNS,

JUST FROM FACTORY.

TO BE SOLD CHEAP AT

CARTHEW'S

DRUG & STATIONERY

STORE.

G. H. V. BULYEA

QU'APPELLE.

Has just received a large consignment of

HOUSEHOLD

FURNITURE,

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

Intending Purchasers of Furniture are invited to call and examine the Stock.

The EXECUTORS of the late

G. P. MURRAY,

Indian Head, Assn.,

Have decided to carry on the business in all its branches.

They respectfully call the attention of the public to the complete stock of Groceries, Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Glass and Crockeryware, etc.

WM. BRYDON,

Druggist, Stationer

FLOWER AND GARDEN

SEEDS.

BLUESTONE.

Warranted Pure.

COLLAR

FACING.

We make a specialty of this branch of the business. Have the old collars faced with best curled hair and obviate the necessity of buying new ones. We are making a substantial

REDUCTION

in the prices of all classes of Harness, manufactured on the premises.

Whatever is needed that the Harness Maker supplies can be obtained from

Garfield A. MacGurk

SADDLER

AND

HARNESS MAKER,

QU'APPELLE.

J. R. NORTH

Has taken over the

Butchering

Business

Lately carried on by Mrs. Milne at the

NEW MEAT MARKET

(Next door to Mr. Wisner's)

And hopes by strict attention to business to receive a share of public patronage.

THE NEW FIRM.

Davidson &

Hastings

GENERAL AGENTS

FOR H. S. WAREBROOK,

The pioneer dealer in Farm Implements.

ALSO FOR THE

J. S. ROWELL Mfg. Co., Beaver

Dam, Wis., U.S.A.,

Manufacturers of the "TIGER"

Seeding Machines, Hoe Drills, Shoe

Drills, Press Drills, Combined Seeder

and Drill, and Broadcast Seeders, and the Steel Frame Seeder and Drill Combined, manufactured in eight sizes:

8 Hoe, 8 inch. 14 Hoe, 6 inch.

10 Hoe, 6 inch. 16 Hoe, 6 inch.

12 Hoe, 8 inch. 18 Hoe, 6 inch.

12 Hoe, 6 inch. 22 Hoe, 6 inch.

ALSO THE

WALTER A. WOODS, of Hoosick

Falls, N.Y.,

The great manufacturers of the

Minneapolis All Steel Binders,

Mowers, Rakes, Reapers, and all kinds of Plows, guaranteed to clean

in any soil.

ALSO THE

J. I. CASE THREASERS AND

ENGINES,

Separators with Horse Powers,

Separators with Trucks,

Stackers and Baggers,

Double Pinion Woodbury Powers,

White Engines,

Canadian Separators,

16-Horse Canadian Threshing Rigs

complete,

American Champion Road Machines

Bain Wagons.

SAVES OF ALL KINDS.

SINGER SEWING MACHINES.

WAREHOUSES:

Qu'Appelle, Indian Head, and

Wolseley.

The Qu'Appelle Progress.

Is Published every Thursday

At The Progress Printing Office: in the Town of Qu'Appelle, Assiniboia, Canada.

The rates for our advertising space by contract are as follows:

One column $5.00 3 columns $15.00 5 columns $25.00

Half column 2.50 1 column 4.00 2 columns 7.00 3 columns 10.00

Quarter column 1.25 1 column 2.00 2 columns 3.50 3 columns 5.00

Two inches 1.50 3 inches 2.00 4 inches 2.50 5 inches 3.00

Business cards $1.00 per month payable quarterly.

The above rates do not apply to auction sales, entertainments, tenders, meetings,

legal notices, or anything of a transitory nature. Transient advertisements, 10 cents per line first insertion, 5 cents for each additional insertion. Yearly advertisements allowed to be changed monthly, if notice

$1.00 will be charged for each additional change.

Business locals, 50 cents for first, twenty-five words, 2 cents for each additional word.

The publisher reserves the right to refuse to insert advertisements of a questionable or objectionable character.

Subscription price: $1.50 per annum, in-advance in advance; single copies, 5 cents.

A liberal commission will be allowed to parties who are willing to act as agents for us. Write for terms.

Address:

THE PROGRESS PRINTING CO.,

Qu'Appelle, Assn.

A. C. PATTERSON, Manager.

THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1893.

CLOSE OF THE SESSION.

The Session just closed has been the shortest in many years. The wish expressed by the Premier before the opening that the session should be short, sharp, and decisive was carried out, and much of the time that is usually spent in wrangling over unimportant

questions was utilized to better advantage. The Government majority ran along about fifty whenever a

Bill House was present, and contrary to the expectations of the Opposition that Tarte and McCarthy

would wreck the Government, Sir

John Thompson is as strong to-day as when the session opened. Slight modifications were made in the tariff, and the Government promised that a thorough investigation would be made into the working of the present regulations as they affected all classes, and on the strength of these observations a thorough revision would be made next session.

Such duties as appear to bear heavily on any class, without corresponding advantages, will no doubt be removed, and the fundamental principles of the National Policy still maintained.

The alliance between McCarthy and Tarte on the Manitoba school

case was so apparently a scheme to defeat the Government that it was peremptorily disposed of, and the judicious course pursued by the Government in dealing with the question endorsed by Parliament.

That McCarthy has jumped the fence is no longer a question of doubt, but his meagre following would by no means justify the opinion that his expectations of a revolution have been to any alarming extent realized. All the members of the Government are well able to defend the administration of the several departments, and consequently the Opposition has not been able to cause any serious embarrassment, or to any great extent prolong as one of the arbitrators affords a guarantee that the interests of our readers will be properly though not unduly safeguarded.

The treaty of commerce which has been negotiated with France on behalf of Canada has been laid before you, together with the correspondence which passed during the negotiations, but owing to the late period of the session at which the treaty was received and the necessity of communication as to its bearing in respect of the most favored national treatment and the interpretation of certain of its clauses, my Government has thought it advisable to postpone for the present its ratification by Parliament.

I thank you for the ample provision you have made to protect the country from the possible introduction of cholera, and I trust that the precautions taken will result in guarding against any danger from that source.

The liberal provisions made for the proper representation of Canada at the World's Columbian Fair will, I doubt not, enable this country to make a worthy exhibit of her resources and progress among the nations of the world.

The various acts which you have placed on the statute book will contribute to the maintenance of public security and the continued progress of the country.

AGRICULTURAL

Points.

The lady dog is pestered most by the flies.

A calf is not valued by the loveliness of its hair.

He who leads time by the forelock can sleep well at night.

The prettiest blossoms do not always hold the sweetest honey.

Growing at the times will not lift the mortgage on your farm.

Success is on the hill top, you cannot get there without climbing.

Be the kind of man that you would like to have your boys become.

It is no money in your pocket, to fail to make your stables comfortable.

The sunshine of a glad heart, makes the darkest, dreariest day radiant and pleasant.

There is more solid comfort in a smile, than in a whole grove of frowns. It is good economy to smile.

If you get mad, go to the looking glass and watch yourself growl, and see how quick you will quit it.

The man who depends on the spur of the moment often discovers that particular moment hasn't any spur.

Do not act the rascal with your farm, by taking from it more than you give back to it in the way of fertilizers.

Laziness and labor are brothers; but the one is married to incentive, and the other always remains a bachelor.

If you can see nothing but the bad, shut your eyes. Better be blind than unable to see the beautiful and the good.

Pump and pear trees thrive best on a sandy clay loam, made rich with manure and given close cultivation, affords a fruit grower.

Early in the present century the first Australian wool, weighing 107 pounds, was sent to England. The import now is over 32,000,000 pounds.

Vegetable matter is nature's fertilizer, and all that can't be used to good purpose in feeding should be turned under. The time spent in turning under weeds and refuse will bring back more than its cost.

The measure from a ton of corn meal at $24 a ton is worth $5.50; from ground meal at $28 a ton, $18, and from wheat bran it is worth $10 a ton; so that these feeds are not only better than any other, but have a higher manual value.

From one-third to one-half of an actual loss, one-third just about pay their way, and the other third are obliged to maintain a profitable average for the whole.

Nothing has been so well calculated to awaken the farmers to a consideration of the subject of an advanced education and to prepare them for the reception of the teachings of the stations and colleges as the farmers' institutes.

It is no longer a question with the intelligent and thrifty farmer about the advisability of using fertilizers in liberal quantities in some form, but simply the cost of obtaining them in the most desirable form.

Some men pretend to love God, who show that they do not love the wives of their bosoms, by making them use the most primitive household appliances, while they themselves are supplied with all the best improved farm machinery used by civilized men.

In England the value of a farm, either for sale or rental, is based upon what it will produce, or the number of cattle it will carry, and there is not much guess work about it. In time our own haphazard practice must give way to such better methods.

Look to the ewes, as it is here the danger often lies. All your milk pans, using a small, stiff brush, and soap, and get, and all you have a vat you can, by having some simple heating apparatus under it, have hot water at all times. While making butter, have nothing but what is perfectly clean.

Each year the poultry industry grows more prosperous. More eggs and poultry are produced each year, and each year the prices are higher than the year before.

This indicates that we are becoming a nation of poultry eaters, and that poultry is going to be good property for years to come.

There is much dairy butter that adulteration with oleomargarine would positively improve. It was the making of wagon-grease butter that opened the market for oleomargarine. Twenty-five cents per tub is a ready sale, and the next year it will close the market and bring poverty to the maker.

Since the science of horticulture holds so important a position in political economy, the question for horticultural societies to consider is: In the fruit industry, what are the advances that modern science—fully executed by holding exhibitions and distributing prizes—should we not initiate some method of botanical investigation, or, like the Royal Horticultural Society, plan an experimental garden?

It is important to have the soil as fine as possible, and the best way to do this is to harrow thoroughly immediately after the ploughing is done; that is, harrow just before noon when the soil has been plowed before noon, and the soil will be plowed in the afternoon should be harrowed in the evening. This keeps the work up evenly and prepares the ground for the best results.

As to ploughing for the peach, one must experiment at home. I lived twenty-five years where asches seemed almost magical in its effect on the foliage and growth of peach trees. On moving thirty miles away to alluvial valley soil from the former mountain slope, I got a crop of strong oak-wood ashes, but could never discern any difference in growth where it was applied. But every where I have seen peach trees along stone fences or in closely cultivated fields, longer and bear better than where the roots are liable to be wounded by plough or cultivation.

There is nothing in agriculture that needs so much attention as the proper keeping of a dairy. How many dairies we often see through the country kept in a state not fit for such work. Now, as an exchange, the chief and most essential point in this dairy work is cleanliness—not simply to clean in an ordinary manner so often performed in many places, but to keep things thoroughly clean—everything that would endanger the purity of butter and milk. Every utensil before and after being used should be well cleaned. The best method is to wash with soda, and then with water again, and, lastly with cold water.

Poultry Raising.

Mr. Hunter, a successful poultry raiser, says that an income of from $1.50 to $2.50 per hen might be realized under judicious management.

With fifty or one hundred hens this would yield a sum that would be acceptable to almost any farmer or member of his family. He bought a small farm and made poultry keeping a leading feature, keeping from 110 to 140 hens the first year, which gave him an average of 150 eggs per hen which sold at an average through the year of 25 cents per dozen. The best prices are obtained in winter and if well cared for, the greatest profit is then realized. He has three rules for egg production in winter. Hatch early, keep up vigorous growth and give good food and care. Medium sized breeds are preferred and these should be hatched in April and May by October. Then if well fed and cared for they will lay through the winter and be ready to set in early spring. Some fall by over-crowding. A flock of 15 should have over 1250 with a much larger yard attached for summer range.

His yards are large enough to afford an abundant supply of green pasture grass through the season. He always sets two hens at a time, and after hatching generally gives all the chicks to one mother. He never feeds till the chicks are 24 hours old, then gives a hard boiled egg chopped and with the shell on. Bread crumbs and milk are used for small chickens and fed once two hours the first week or more. He never forgets to feed upon and so they will have grit for grinding the food. If kept on grass or a clean floor they can find gravel and will suffer indigestion in consequence. Separate the males and fatten for market before they come to maturity. Feed the pullets lightly on corn as it is too fattening for health and production. Let them have fresh clean water at all times and pounded oyster shells. Give vegetables freely, boiled and mixed with morning meal. Natural is expensive but it pays in chicken health and growth. He uses a bone cutter and gives cut bone often, also animal meal. The stock is mostly changed at 17 months of age or before the moulting season. In winter cut clover is boiled and fed with the corn occasionally. This takes the place of green grass so freely eaten in summer by all hens that can get it. Whole grain is fed mingled with cut straw, hay or leaves for scratching and healthful exercise. In cold weather he stirs the morning feed of warm meal and gives a little grain to make them exercise early in the day instead of sitting round idle. A variety of grain is given to keep the appetite sharp but corn is fed in the summer. A hen can easily lay 175 eggs by the time she is 17 months old.

Dividing Flocks of Sheep.

It is best to divide a flock under any circumstances. There are always the strong and the weak and pay later suffer from the crowding and hustling of the stronger. They do not get a full share of the feed, and when a sheep is on the balance a very small thing will change it either way. Then if it goes down, it is difficult to bring it up again. It is better to keep them in two flocks, and give each lot separate attention. A run in a stable field in fine weather is healthful and agreeable, and does sheep much good; in fact any change seems to instill new spirit into the flock and makes them more alert. It will bring early lambs should be kept by themselves in some place where they will not be crowded or hustled about, no one but the watchful shepherd knows how much harm may be done to the ewes by the pushing they get by the ram or some other ewe, when they are caught in a corner. Some preparations for the early lambs, a few pens where the ewes may be kept by themselves a few days before the lambs come, may very easily save both ewe and lamb. A pen should be in a warm, quiet place.

Choosing a Breed.

Many failures in practical poultry keeping are due to the choice of the wrong breed of fowls. For the fancier, who breeds for pleasure the advice to select the breed he likes best may be sufficient, but for the practical poultryman such advice is not sufficient. He should choose a breed, first, for the special object in view, whether eggs, or poultry, or a combination of the two; secondly, for the requirements of his market; and thirdly, for the ease of raising, or the color, or the skin of the poultry yellow or white; thirdly, for his situation, whether it be a cold and exposed one, or a warm and sunny one, as some breeds will do admirably in one situation and indifferently or wretchedly in another. Water is easy to get, and there is not much guess work about it. In time our own haphazard practice must give way to such better methods.

Look to the ewes, as it is here the danger often lies. All your milk pans, using a small, stiff brush, and soap, and get, and all you have a vat you can, by having some simple heating apparatus under it, have hot water at all times. While making butter, have nothing but what is perfectly clean.

Each year the poultry industry grows more prosperous. More eggs and poultry are produced each year, and each year the prices are higher than the year before.

This indicates that we are becoming a nation of poultry eaters, and that poultry is going to be good property for years to come.

There is much dairy butter that adulteration with oleomargarine would positively improve. It was the making of wagon-grease butter that opened the market for oleomargarine. Twenty-five cents per tub is a ready sale, and the next year it will close the market and bring poverty to the maker.

Since the science of horticulture holds so important a position in political economy, the question for horticultural societies to consider is: In the fruit industry, what are the advances that modern science—fully executed by holding exhibitions and distributing prizes—should we not initiate some method of botanical investigation, or, like the Royal Horticultural Society, plan an experimental garden?

It is important to have the soil as fine as possible, and the best way to do this is to harrow thoroughly immediately after the ploughing is done; that is, harrow just before noon when the soil has been plowed before noon, and the soil will be plowed in the afternoon should be harrowed in the evening. This keeps the work up evenly and prepares the ground for the best results.

As to ploughing for the peach, one must experiment at home. I lived twenty-five years where asches seemed almost magical in its effect on the foliage and growth of peach trees. On moving thirty miles away to alluvial valley soil from the former mountain slope, I got a crop of strong oak-wood ashes, but could never discern any difference in growth where it was applied. But every where I have seen peach trees along stone fences or in closely cultivated fields, longer and bear better than where the roots are liable to be wounded by plough or cultivation.

There is nothing in agriculture that needs so much attention as the proper keeping of a dairy. How many dairies we often see through the country kept in a state not fit for such work. Now, as an exchange, the chief and most essential point in this dairy work is cleanliness—not simply to clean in an ordinary manner so often performed in many places, but to keep things thoroughly clean—everything that would endanger the purity of butter and milk. Every utensil before and after being used should be well cleaned. The best method is to wash with soda, and then with water again, and, lastly with cold water.

Mr. Hunter, a successful poultry raiser, says that an income of from $1.50 to $2.50 per hen might be realized under judicious management.

With fifty or one hundred hens this would yield a sum that would be acceptable to almost any farmer or member of his family. He bought a small farm and made poultry keeping a leading feature, keeping from 110 to 140 hens the first year, which gave him an average of 150 eggs per hen which sold at an average through the year of 25 cents per dozen. The best prices are obtained in winter and if well cared for, the greatest profit is then realized. He has three rules for egg production in winter. Hatch early, keep up vigorous growth and give good food and care. Medium sized breeds are preferred and these should be hatched in April and May by October. Then if well fed and cared for they will lay through the winter and be ready to set in early spring. Some fall by over-crowding. A flock of 15 should have over 1250 with a much larger yard attached for summer range.

His yards are large enough to afford an abundant supply of green pasture grass

GIVEN UP BY THE SEA.

One of Clark Russell's Oddest Concoits Paralleled in Actual Experience.

The Norwegian bark Ela Andersen came into Galveston a day or two ago with a strange-looking vessel in tow. This was a small rig of English build, and was a wreck of a ship, which had been sunk more than fifty years ago, judging from its ancient appearance and awkward rigging, so sailors who have looked at it say.

On the afternoon of the 17th of February, off the coast of Falmouth, where the bark Ela Andersen had been blown by a recent heavy sea, there was a violent upsurge of the sea about two miles distant from the spot where she was riding, that sent several waves sweeping over her which did much damage and threatened to submerge her entirely. When the alarm caused by the sudden sea had subsided there had been about a mile of Ela which had not been there before the upheaval of the bottom of the sea, a phenomenon corresponding to an earthquake on land.

The vessel had much interest among the officers and passengers of the Norwegian vessel, and an order was issued to approach the strange craft, when it was seen that the remains of her rigging, stumps of masts, and the hull itself were covered by thousands of sea shells, causing a wreck to present the appearance of the miniature ships of shellwork to be purchased at any seaside town. The leaks which had sunk the vessel were now stopped by an accumulation of barnacles, and the derelict rode the waves like a duck.

A boat load of sailors was detached to board the wreck, and they found the hold and under decks water tight, save for a few feet of water, which, covering the cargo, had sunk her. But this cargo and the other contents of the ship were entirely destroyed, most of the former having been devoured by the denizens of the deep. In what had evidently been the captain's berth were found several iron-bound chests, which had resisted, to some extent, the ravages of time and the sea, but, on being opened, the contents were found to be reduced to a sort of pulp, with the exception of a leather bag. This had become hardened until it was necessary to break it open with an axe, when from it poured a quantity of rusty disks, which, being cleaned, proved to be silver coins of the year 1870 and amounting to the sum of £1,005. There were also several watches of gold and a stomach of pearls; these, however, are valueless, having been blackened by the action of the water.

This wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

The wreck was attached to the Ela Andersen by a cable and towed to this port, where it is attracting crowds of visitors. On the fourth day after its detachment from the bottom of the sea by the quake, the water was pumped out of the ship, when it was found to contain three skeletons, two of them men and the other a woman's, this last being of a person of gigantic build, and in life of nearly seven feet in height. About the neck of one of the skeletons was a small object, which was found to be a silver crucifix and evidently a rosary.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

English people are much pleased with their new dove-tailed paving bricks.

A number of frozen frogs fell from the clouds during a snow storm in Fulton County, Pa.

The houses of Boise City, Idaho, are to be heated with water which comes boiling from artesian wells.

Henry Morgan of China Grove, N. C., is in his seventy-fifth year, and has never needed a physician.

The American Bible Society, since its establishment in 1817, has published 55,531,908 copies of the Bible.

The catcombs of Rome extend 580 miles in length, and contain, it is estimated, the remains of 6,000,000 human bodies.

A cat in Walkerton, Ind., belonging to William Teeples, associates only with chickens, and actually roosts with them.

A diver has discovered that fishes in the tropical seas, when frightened, dart in different directions, each fish concealing itself in a marine vegetation nearest its own color.

A farmer near Shelby, N. C., was preparing to build a fire, on a cold morning, when he saw seventeen rabbits in a corner of the room. They had entered to escape the cold.

A wintering scenic novelty in a London theater is a collection of primas held together by thin wire and illuminated by electric lights. The effect is fairy-like and dazzling.

Cats are in demand in Monrovia, Ind., to exterminate the rats, which are rapidly increasing in numbers there, causing great loss to housekeepers and storekeepers by their depredations.

A clock that will not strike after dark is to be placed on the new high school building at Colorado Springs. A wag declares that if it strikes at night, it might arouse the night police.

A perfect whispering gallery exists in the Mormon Tabernacle at Salt Lake City. A pin dropped into a silk hat at one end of the gallery can be distinctly heard by persons at the opposite end.

Near Chestertown, Md., is a lake which is never ruffled or disturbed, no matter how violent the wind may be. Another peculiarity about it is that not the slightest ripple of ice has congealed on its surface.

In some sections of the South the graves of negroes are decorated with the medicine bottles used by the deceased during the last illness. The surviving relatives, when visiting the graves, often discuss the effects of the various remedies.

The hue of a child's cheeks was closely imitated by a Parisian nurse, and the child seemed to increase in weight. The latter effect was produced by concealment of the nurse's face.

One of the most influential politicians of Pittsburgh is Lyman Magee. When he was a barefooted boy he was often driven off the estate which is now his home. He determined, when he grew up, to buy the property, and he did so.

Prince Nicholas, of Montenegro, is the ruler of that country, and has a cinch on the money-lending business. He is the only capitalist of any consequence, and he lends his money to his subjects.

Chas. Coombs, an obliging school-teacher in Madison County, Ky., assisted his pupils in having fun by a Roman candle party to-day, while the other lads held the poor brute. The candle prematurely exploded, and one of the lads ended his fun for the day.

A cat tug-of-war took place a short time ago, at West Lynn, Mass., between a locomotive and an electric motor. They were coupled, and at a signal began to pull in opposite directions. For a brief period neither budged. And was then thrown on the track by the locomotive.

The latter at once developed renewed energy, and won the contest.

Undertakers rarely weep, but in Troy, Vt., there was one who was almost and enough to weep. He was summoned to prepare a coffin for Thomas Samwell, aged 82, who had been ailing for some time, and was declared dead. When the undertaker appeared, old Tom was sitting up, and enjoyed the other's disappointment.

The concentrated essence of gall is possessed by a New York alderman who once successfully worked the green goods game. He is now in India, and passes as a religious reformer. Large sums of money are collected by him with the ostensible purpose of sending missionaries to the United States to turn the people from Christianity and make them Mohammedans.

AN ILLINOIS MIRACLE.

A Case of Deep Interest to All Women.

saved Through a Casual Glance at a Newspaper. Weak, Pale, and in a Deplorable Condition When Relief Came—Another Remarkable Triumph for a Great Canadian Remedy.

Among the peculiar conditions with which the people of the present age are endowed, a full belief only comes after investigation, and after positive proofs have been presented. Current report said there had been a remarkable cure in the case of a lady of Savannah, Ill., but as current report is not always accurate, and the story told was so passing the time, it was determined to investigate into the matter. The result of this investigation proved that not only was the story true, but that the case was even more remarkable than the public had been given to understand.

Mr. A. R. Kenyon is the fortunate owner of a comfortable house, well kept, and with pleasant surroundings, situated on Chicago avenue, Savannah, Ill., and it was there the reporter sought him to learn of the sickness of his wife, and the cure which so much is being said.

In answer to the bell a lady appeared at the door, and to an enquiry for Mr. Kenyon said, he was employed by the railroad company, worked at nights and was asleep. "Is Mrs. Kenyon well enough to see me?" the reporter then asked. With a very suggestive smile she said: "There is no doubt of it," and inviting the reporter in, informed him that she was the lady in question. When told the reporter's mission she said: "The moment of facts as you have made it quite true. I did not think my case was of special interest outside of my own family and friends, but if what information I can give you will be of use to anyone else you are welcome to it. I own my present good health, to a casual glance at a newspaper, and as with me, no other woman may be fortunate."

Mrs. Kenyon is an intelligent lady-like woman, and her home bears evidence of her great capabilities as a housewife. She told her story as follows:

"I was born in Warren county, New York, thirty-three years ago. I was married when I was 19 and came to Savannah seven years ago. With the exception of being at times subject to violent sick headaches, I consider myself a healthy woman up to five years ago. At this time I was very much run down and an easy prey to the ever present malaria in and about the Mississippi bottom lands. I was taken violently ill and during the succeeding five or six weeks was the greater part of the time in bed. The local physician said I had been affected by malarial and intermittent fevers. I continually grew weaker and finally went to see Dr. McAvoy of Clinton, Ill., who is reported to be one of the ablest physicians in the Mississippi Valley. He examined me, and after a few days' treatment, he finally told me he thought he

A Remarkable Oriental Experience.

A THRILLING STORY OF CHINESE TREACHERY.

CHAPTER XIII.

On the day succeeding that on which Chin-chin-wa had paid his visit to the Imperial City, the following occurred:

We had been engaged during the forenoon in a discussion of the system of bribery, and it was not until noon, when the hour for our mid-day meal drew near, that we were called to the dining-room.

The restaurant was a new one to me, as I had not seen much of this part of Peking, and I was informed that the dishes were of a better order than those of the old capital, and that there was a greater variety of food.

I had by now, grown so used to the Chinese food, that I did not find it strange, and I was not yet quite familiar to the generally succeeded in getting through my meal without much trouble.

Today I perceived that the dishes were better, and apparently better cooked, than those I had been accustomed to eat, and there were some strange things put before us, regarding which I was careful to inquire before partaking.

Indeed, Chin-chin-wa well knew what dishes to order for himself, and what for me, and I was not much surprised when he ordered a shark's fin—two of the most expensive delicacies to be obtained—and I did not hear to look on sundry other dishes, such as horned or young dogs, or as various loaves.

I was busy accordingly with some of the dishes, when Chin-chin-wa drew my attention to the entry, at the head of the room, of two mandarins in full dress, and one of whom he said was the man who followed.

Chin-chin-wa and I were seated facing each other, my left side and his right being nearest to the door. I was answering some remark, and looking the while toward the two mandarins, when all of a sudden, Chin-chin-wa, suddenly entered, and approaching seated himself at the second table from that which we sat at.

I had ceased to speak, upon his entry, though he had not yet cast his eyes upon me, for I was struck by his appearance, and by the hardness of his Chinese features.

Chin-chin-wa's foot pressed mine. Almost at the same time the mandarin looked toward us.

Chin-chin-wa rose and made an obeisance. The mandarin acknowledged the salute. I was about to speak as Chin-chin-wa resumed his seat, but he interrupted me at the first word, speaking rapidly in Chinese.

I glanced at the mandarin; his cold, piercing eyes had fixed itself upon me, and I understood immediately what Chin-chin-wa had said.

I turned toward him, and appeared to listen to his speech, for it was evident he did not wish me to use the English tongue. Thus I drew my chopsticks slowly through my lips, as I had seen the Chinese do at the conclusion of a meal, for I did not wish to continue eating, having gathered that I had a part to act. Chin-chin-wa shortly rose, as though he too had concluded his meal.

But all the time during which I had sat without speaking, endeavoring to simulate comprehension of that which Chin-chin-wa was uttering to me in Chinese, I had known that the mandarin's glance was fixed inquiringly upon me, and upon my Chinese dress and my lack of speech.

When I had learned to understand what the money of the Chinese was, to which, indeed, the shoes I wore greatly conduced, I followed Chin-chin-wa. As we passed the mandarin Chin-chin-wa made a second obeisance. I did the same.

We passed together from the room, and I followed him, as of some great danger escaped from, came over me as we reached the street.

"That man," said Chin-chin-wa, "is Shan-shan-yuen."

The mandarin struck me as a forbidding figure. It was true indeed that Shan-shan-yuen might only have looked upon me with curiosity, as a second of that strange Englishman, as another of those of whom he had heard so much, but I felt that he was looking upon Chin-chin-wa as a man who was not to be trifled with.

I did not like his scrutinizing glance, and I felt that, though we had escaped immediate danger, there was some trouble in store for the mandarin would not rest, I feared, until he had learned to know what I was, and what I was capable of.

I looked at him strangely. Would this man never admit defeat? In the face of such a crushing blow, was his spirit still undaunted?

I did not know Chin-chin-wa, to doubt him. "I wish to be alone," he said: "there is much that I have to think upon. I shall come to you in the other chamber within an hour."

"I was anxious," said Chin-chin-wa to me in discussing the matter, "as far as possible to avoid any further meeting with the mandarin's eyes. By speaking to you in Chinese, would brighten this impression and diminish, to a small extent, the full sense of the knowledge, which your hair and features of course betrayed, that you were not Chinese."

But, notwithstanding all this, the feeling of being shadowed, me, and from the hour of the encounter I waited expectantly for the evil which something within me foretold.

Chin-chin-wa was of opinion that my fears were groundless, for he felt that the fact of my meeting, although he felt the utmost distrust of Shan-shan-yuen. And indeed, I could not explain either to him or to myself my forebodings, for they seemed to be without cause.

It was about to look for misfortune, because I could not see in what way it could come. Shan-shan-yuen could know nothing of the object of my visit to Peking, and whether he did or did not believe what we had endeavored to place as a bribe before him, would not affect the result. It was merely to follow Chin-chin-wa in joining the Chinese race, it could matter little, for it was not very probable that Shan-shan-yuen would chance to mention the incident of our meeting to the man who was, to whom we were to be introduced to the Palace grounds; nor was it likely that he would even know our foe, and it would indeed be a coincidence were the secret of my mission to be guessed by the man who was to us as a being who might, in reality, have no existence within the circle of human life.

But we at once determined that we should now go upon the idea originally formed, and endeavor to seek Norris in the Imperial grounds, for we had searched alike through the low places in Peking and in the houses of the rich, and by this means we had failed to discover any trace of the missing man.

Wherever there was a courtyard we had sought for admission and generally gained it, and where we had failed to gain admission we had at least satisfied ourselves that there was nothing to be done there, as I have already said, we had sought in low and evil places, on the chance that Norris, months ago in semi-freedom, might not be closely confined. So, although there remained miles of Peking still to search, and vast areas of ground covered by the temples and by the legation, it seemed to us that we sought in vain amongst these, and that in the Imperial City alone could Norris be imprisoned.

And I perceived now that our minds must have been influenced unconsciously by two considerations in this decision: first, by the sense of failure and the uselessness of our past search; and, secondly, by the knowledge of the impenetrable nature of the Imperial City—a certain attraction in the great difficulties to be overcome in undertaking such a search as we proposed within its sacred grounds.

We spent the day following that of our encounter with Shan-shan-yuen, in a curious manner, during which we had a system of bribery, to be so continued that the gamblers should gradually be corrupted, and that from then the bribery should pass on to those beyond, so that by the entry of vast sums in a careful manner the entire Imperial City should be open to us at a future time, and then, with that gained, we should prosecute our search by night.

Those who know aught of the insuperable difficulty of gaining, by money expenditure, an entrance, fraught with danger, into the Palace grounds, will not be surprised that it was not to be, as we had intended, the first of many such days; for my forbidding of ill was already fulfilled, and the evil was awaiting us when we returned to our home.

The blow came in the shape of a mission from the city, to the exile Chin-chin-wa, who was shortly to be disclosed.

For myself, I knew not what to do. I did not feel that I could uphold Chin-chin-wa for a lack of interest in my quest, for I could understand how terrible to him must have been the decree of exile passed upon him now. True, it was not what it had been, it was merely that he was forbidden the city of Peking; but that was sufficient to prove that the exile was, after all, but partly pardoned, and more than enough to cut him from his heart.

Chin-chin-wa had retired to his chamber, and not liking to disturb him, I cast about in my own mind what was fittest for me to do.

That Chin-chin-wa's time was already drawing to an end was obvious. I fully understood, too, that his departure from Peking was left as a useless agent, and I felt that action alone (even to be merely walking in the streets), would satisfy in a small degree my craving to do something.

I should not disturb Chin-chin-wa. I determined, therefore, to wait until he would come to me and I would respect what I believed to be his grief. Thus it came that I decided upon venturing forth alone for an hour or two, intending to return for Chin-chin-wa, and to break in upon him then, whatever might be his feelings.

I made signs to the dealer that my return would be within two hours, and then, not knowing whether he understood me or otherwise, I left the house, and set out walking briskly, it being a matter of hours, along the dusty covered roads. In time—considerable time it must have been, for I had wandered on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

to a complete standstill, and that his mind was entirely dwelling upon his own misfortune during these leaden-footed hours.

There was now no chance, indeed, of our ever entering by back streets, for this for this would have taken weeks to accomplish; but that despair should now have seized upon Chin-chin-wa, as I fancied it had done, I could with difficulty bring myself to believe. How far did I misjudge him in the concept of such a thought?

Once, indeed, I fancied that his mind was at work upon his search, and that was when, upon the morning succeeding the reception of the decree he asked me, in an absent way, for the paper brought to me by the swallow.

I gave it to him, but I did not think that he was then in a condition of mind to attempt to penetrate to the bottom of the well-to-fill that gap which was still as it had been months ago.

To my surprise, he said, but little to me since the conversation which had impressed the thought of the reading the message of the court.

I felt that his grief was such as I could not relieve—that I must leave him to his own thoughts, as he desired to be left; for the misfortune seemed to have changed him in some way that I could not understand.

And this was the change, as I soon discovered. His every effort of mind was now turned to the determination, to discover and save William Norris before the expiration of the time appointed; and the result of this determination, and the working of his mind was shortly to be disclosed.

For myself, I knew not what to do. I did not feel that I could uphold Chin-chin-wa for a lack of interest in my quest, for I could understand how terrible to him must have been the decree of exile passed upon him now. True, it was not what it had been, it was merely that he was forbidden the city of Peking; but that was sufficient to prove that the exile was, after all, but partly pardoned, and more than enough to cut him from his heart.

Chin-chin-wa had retired to his chamber, and not liking to disturb him, I cast about in my own mind what was fittest for me to do.

That Chin-chin-wa's time was already drawing to an end was obvious. I fully understood, too, that his departure from Peking was left as a useless agent, and I felt that action alone (even to be merely walking in the streets), would satisfy in a small degree my craving to do something.

I should not disturb Chin-chin-wa. I determined, therefore, to wait until he would come to me and I would respect what I believed to be his grief. Thus it came that I decided upon venturing forth alone for an hour or two, intending to return for Chin-chin-wa, and to break in upon him then, whatever might be his feelings.

I made signs to the dealer that my return would be within two hours, and then, not knowing whether he understood me or otherwise, I left the house, and set out walking briskly, it being a matter of hours, along the dusty covered roads. In time—considerable time it must have been, for I had wandered on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

I was interested in the various articles for sale, and thus strolled onward, partly forgetting my misfortune in the city, and partly, I think, because I was so tired, and I felt that I had been partly satisfied, although he could not have been so tired, as I had been, for I had been wandering on without looking at my watch—I came to a strange part of the town near to one of the gates, where I had not been before, and where something of a fair was being held in narrow, paved streets and arcades.

for I have heard his cries. He is confined in the Temple of Confucius.

"It can not be, it is impossible," he went on, "there is no red ink in the Temple of Confucius, and with sharp knife. There is nothing lacking now; there is the swallow's message as it was given to the bird by William Norris. It is wonderfully simple, when we know the truth."

I looked at the paper.

It seemed to have been filled as by a miracle, the whole fitted so exactly; for Chin-chin-wa, with Chinese skill of hand, had written the missing part exactly as the rest, and the completed whole read thus:

Loose time, I am imprisoned in the Temple of Confucius, in Peking, by the Chinese. Tenth swallow. William Norris, September, 18—

My God help me!

"And you," continued Chin-chin-wa, as I continued to gaze upon the paper, "we are near the end. Either we save William Norris, or we ourselves perish; for I am late, in the face of the order of the court which banishes me from Peking, refuse to leave the city unless that man goes with me when I go."

Town & Country Gullings.

—Lord Brassey has been elected President of Dr. Barardo's Home for 1893-4.

—Mr. Molloy has gone to Saskatoon to relieve the C.P.R. agent for a couple of weeks.

—On Sunday, the 16th inst., Rev. A. Matheson will preach at the residence of Mr. Pike, at 11 a.m.

—Mr. James Fair moved back to his farm last week, and is preparing to begin seeding operations.

—A cow belonging to Mr. Raymond fell into an old well, and was found dead on Wednesday morning.

—Mrs. E. W. Warner and family left by Wednesday's train on a visit for a few months to her old home at Brockville, Ont.

—Miss Dinah, the well known thoroughbred filly owned by Cottingham and McDonald, of Fort McLeod, died on Friday last.

—Wild geese are making their appearance in large flocks, and sportsmen are in consequence getting ready for the spring shooting.

—Mr. Frank Amas has secured the position of district agent for Brown Bros. Continental Nurseries, Toronto. Particulars will be given from his advertisement in another column.

—Miss Mabel Talbot left on Monday to take charge of the Montgomery School, south of Whitehead, and Miss Fanny Gibson also left on the same day to take charge of the Springbrook school.

—Mr. Sam Tease has purchased the butchering business of Mr. Roberts, Fort Qu'Appelle, and left on Tuesday to take charge. Sam is a pushing dealer, and will make things lively at the Fort.

—Miss Bell, who has been living with her sister, Mrs. J. P. Beauchamp, for the past two years, left for Chicago on Thursday last. Miss Bell is a popular young lady and will be missed by a large circle of friends.

—It reports to be true, Edgely promises to rival New Orleans as the scene of combats in the manly art before long. From the weeks occasionally seen from that district one is inclined to the opinion that the great Corbett must have made his appearance there.

—Considerable dissatisfaction exists in the Davin settlement over the action of the church authorities refusing the use of the church for school purposes. Those who contributed liberally towards the erection of this building look upon the recent action as decidedly arbitrary.

—Mr. R. Johnston arrived from Ontario on Saturday with twenty-five horses and eight thoroughbred bulls. The majority of the horses are heavy draft mares, well calculated for farm work, and the balance are roadsters. The bulls are all registered stock, and should find a ready market.

—Mr. J. J. W. Bell, of Davin, returned with his family from Ontario a short time ago. Mr. Sprague, of Winton, Ont., accompanied Mr. Bell and intends going into farming in the Davin district. There is no finer land in the country than is to be found in this settlement, and it is fast being taken up.

—A meeting of the Qu'Appelle branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held in the Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening, the 29th ult. Mr. D. S. McCannell in the chair. The officers for the ensuing year were elected, and the meeting was addressed by Rev. Mr. Stacey (Moose Jaw), Rev. A. Matheson, and Mr. A. M. Hale.

—In returning from Court on Tuesday last, Mr. Wm. Smith, advocate, accidentally slipped from the sidewalk into an excavation filled with water and for a time enjoyed a refreshing bath. The timely arrival of the burly Clerk of the Court, who heroically jeopardized his own life to save our esteemed citizen, prevented what might have been a serious calamity.

—A library has recently been formed in connection with the Methodist Sunday School, and will be opened for the use of those attending the school on Sunday next. Mr. Frank Amas will be librarian. A good selection of handsomely bound books, by well known authors, is provided, and no doubt the library will prove itself useful in providing suitable reading matter for those attending the school.

—A new time table is expected to go into effect on the first of June that will give a day train service through this section. The west bound train will probably leave Winnipeg early in the morning and pass here shortly after noon, and the east bound will arrive in daylight. This change should greatly benefit us as it will enable passengers to see something of the country as well as relieve the necessity of remaining up all night to meet trains.

DR. PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder.

The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder.—No Ammonia; No Alum.
Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard.

—We are pleased to learn that our Municipal Council are determined that the town gets a thorough cleaning this spring. Never was there greater necessity for the most active measures being taken, the filth that has accumulated during the winter removed at the earliest possible moment. Mr. Doolittle, Health Inspector, will now be on the war path, and delinquents will not escape as easily as they did heretofore.

—Senator Perley arrived home on Monday morning and will remain for a few days, when he will return to Ottawa and thence to Chicago, where he will spend the next six months in looking after the North-West exhibit at the World's Fair. The Commissioner expects that our exhibits will be in place for the opening, and is satisfied that the display will be a creditable one, although not as complete as would have been the case had there been more time to prepare.

—The majority of the people of Moosemin will remember the burly figure of Fred K. Gibson, who was at one time manager of Lafferty & Smith's bank here. He has been living at Victoria, Northern Alberta, all winter, and has been arrested and taken to Calgary on a charge of embezzlement from the bank here in 1890. Gibson was for several years a resident of Regina, where he held, successively, the positions of deputy sheriff and bank clerk. He was fond of pleasure and generally contrived to move in high society both here and at Regina. —Spectator.

—The entertainment given in the Spring Brook School House on April 3rd was an unqualified success in every particular. Mr. R. Bourne occupied the chair, and after delivering an able and most appropriate address, disposed of the following programme with such precision as brought on him the encomiums of the large and appreciative audience: Greeting; song by the club; reading, Senator Talbot; recitation, Master Geo. Seymour; song, Mr. Stacey; recitation, Mrs. Glegg; vocal duet, Mr. and Mrs. Nicol; song, F. W. Seymour; instrumental duet, Mr. and Mrs. Glegg; song, Mr. and Mrs. Boyle; recitation, Master Claude Seymour; selection, Boyle's Band. Several of the above ladies and gentlemen appeared more than once, and all were vigorously encouraged. A splendid supper was provided by the ladies, after the participation of which dancing was indulged in without abatement until "daylight did appear." The proceeds are to be devoted to the organ fund.

—The concert given by the Qu'Appelle Mission Band on Tuesday last, in McLane's Hall, was a grand success, both financially and otherwise. Miss McFarlane, the President of the Band, occupied the chair and introduced the programme, which was lengthy, including several choruses, duets, solos, recitations, and a dialogue. There was no charge for admittance but a collection was taken up in the course of the evening, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to mission work. The following is the programme: Hymn—There is a cry from Macedonia—Mission Band; Lord's Prayer in concert; President's remarks; quartette—Tell out the joyful tidings—Miss McFarlane, Messrs. Sheldford, Podham and Cathcart; recitation—The light house and its keeper—Miss Wilson; solo duet, Messrs. Podham and Sheldford; recitation—To all the world—Miss D. Fair; chorus—Our Mission Band for Jesus; reading—How there came to be eight—Miss M. Grieve; duet—I will—Messrs. Sheldford and Cathcart; recitation—Send the gospel.

—A meeting of the Qu'Appelle branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held in the Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening, the 29th ult. Mr. D. S. McCannell in the chair. The officers for the ensuing year were elected, and the meeting was addressed by Rev. Mr. Stacey (Moose Jaw), Rev. A. Matheson, and Mr. A. M. Hale.

—In returning from Court on Tuesday last, Mr. Wm. Smith, advocate, accidentally slipped from the sidewalk into an excavation filled with water and for a time enjoyed a refreshing bath. The timely arrival of the burly Clerk of the Court, who heroically jeopardized his own life to save our esteemed citizen, prevented what might have been a serious calamity.

—A library has recently been formed in connection with the Methodist Sunday School, and will be opened for the use of those attending the school on Sunday next. Mr. Frank Amas will be librarian. A good selection of handsomely bound books, by well known authors, is provided, and no doubt the library will prove itself useful in providing suitable reading matter for those attending the school.

—A new time table is expected to go into effect on the first of June that will give a day train service through this section. The west bound train will probably leave Winnipeg early in the morning and pass here shortly after noon, and the east bound will arrive in daylight. This change should greatly benefit us as it will enable passengers to see something of the country as well as relieve the necessity of remaining up all night to meet trains.

—Miss C. Fair; duet—Go tell the world—Miss F. Grieve and Miss F. Wismer; dialogue—A talk about heathen lands and people; quartette—He rose, the Saviour rose; recitation—A short sermon on giving—Arthur Wismer; chorus—Tell it out—Mission Band; God save the Queen.

KENLIS.
Mr. James Giddes lost a valuable horse last week.

We are glad to hear that Mr. Alfred Lott has recovered from his illness.

The Methodist choir is well under way again since the return of the organist, Miss E. Bonestell from the east.

The Royal Templars intend holding an open lodge on April 14th, for which a programme is in preparation.

We understand that Miss C. Giddes has taken the Katepwa school for four months.

Miss Annie Garratt has returned from Grenfell.

Mr. T. Powell is drawing cats from Pleasant Forks. He says they are plentiful but dear.

WOLSELEY.
The Wolseley people are quite elated over the decision of the Government to have a Court House erected here. The plans are already out, the site has been chosen, and tenders will at once be called for. It will be a substantial addition to the town.

A boom is expected in the building line the coming summer. It is expected that the following will be erected: Court House; Magee & Co., warehouse; A. E. Banbury, residence; L. A. Briggs, residence; R. D. Thompson, residence; A. M. Fraser, residence; John Benson, residence.

It is reported that Scott, Hamilton and Robson, of Regina, will open a law office here.

Dr. James, of Kingston, will arrive about the 1st of May and locate here.

Three thoroughbred Hereford calves arrived by express for Senator Perley's ranch on Monday.

SUICIDE AT GAINSBORO.
J. W. Sapwell, of Gainsboro, N. W.T., suicided on Saturday night, about six o'clock. Depression over business difficulties is supposed to have been the cause of the rash act. When found the body was in the tinshop, both doors being locked, lying behind the counter with one bullet through his head and another through his heart and a thirty-eight calibre revolver clutched in his right hand. Sapwell came from Boissevain to Gainsboro.

STOLEN!!
(REWARD OFFERED)
FROM the residence of Mr. EDWARDS, at Qu'Appelle station, after his sale of effects on the 14th of May last, an English half military pig skin SADDLE, nearly new, with removable pads (which protruded somewhat behind), steel straps, heavy leather with numbered holes, was missing. The name "Saddie" was stamped in several places both on saddle and on accessories. A handsome reward will be paid to anyone giving such information as will lead to the recovery of the saddle or the conviction of the thief or thieves. SERGE F. FRYE, Qu'Appelle Station, or E. HOWARD HALL, Victoria, B.C.

FOR SALE
A FIRST CLASS Yoke of Working OXEN, well broken, in good condition. Six years old.
Apply to McNAUGHTON & McDONALD.

FOR SALE.
FOR SALE, a good SADDLE PONY, "Topsy," price $20. Also nearly new English SADDLE, $15.
Address, H. H. B.,
Edgely Farm.

★ A Premium Puzzle. ★

THIS HANDSOME LADY'S COMPANION, can you find them? It is a puzzle, and it is a puzzle to find the pieces. The puzzle is a high class, 1000 piece, illustrated Magazine devoted to Literature, Home Life, Fashion, the most attractive and entertaining of the best class of readers. A perfectly fair and legitimate premium system is adopted by its publishers at great outlay, in order to quickly place it and its sister publications at the head of all Canadian periodicals in point of circulation. During the year we will give away Four Illustrated Magazine Premiums. The most excellent good will be kept until every subscriber has received his or her share. No name of subscriber to receive the grand Prize now exhibited at our office. Ladies' Companion for March.

—We publish Ladies' Companion, 100 pages per year. Ladies at Home, 100 pages per year. Our 1893 and 1894 20 cent per year. Note our address: 100 King St. West, and do not confound our publications with any others of somewhat similar names.

PREMIUM LIST.
To the first person solving puzzle we will award an elegant Rosewood Piano, valued at $80; the next will receive a Gold Watch; the third, a Silk Dress Pattern; the fourth, a Swiss Music Box; the fifth, a Silver Watch; the sixth, a Bangle Bracelet; the seventh, a Gold Ring; the eighth, a Silver Five Dollar Note; the ninth, a Gold Chain; the tenth, a Silver Five Dollar Note. To the middle reader will be awarded a Gold Ring; and to the few following each a Diamond Portraiture of under or any friend. The reader of better bearing each portraiture, previous to the time of the puzzle, will receive a Gold Watch. The reader next to last will receive a Silver Watch; the last preceding, a beautiful Gold Brooch.

CONDITIONS.—Each contestant must mail three puzzles in ink or pencil, cut advertisement out and forward to us with Thirty Cents for a month's subscription to the Ladies' Companion. Address: D. LADIES' COMPANION PUBL. CO., 106 King St. West, Toronto, Can.

TENDERS
SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tenders for erection of Church," will be received up to noon of Monday, 15th Mar. 1893, for the erection of a Presbyterian Church in the Town of Sinituluta.
Plans and specifications may be seen at the office of the undersigned. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.
C. J. BUTTON,
Sinituluta, N.W.T.

NOTICE.
ALL CLAIMS against the Estate of the late G. P. MURRAY must be filed within one month from date in order to be entertained.
FERGUSON AND CAMPBELL,
March 30th, 1893.
Executors.

RARE CHANCE
FOR SALE OR RENT, on easy terms, the S.E. Quarter of Section 20, Township 18, Range 14. Within half a mile of town. Good house on premises.
Also for sale at a bargain 320 acres within two miles of town.
Apply to A. C. PATTERSON,
Qu'Appelle Station, N.W.T.

FARM TO LET.
A GOOD FARM, situated two miles south-west of McLean, 40 acres under cultivation, log house and stable, TO LET on easy terms.
The undersigned has also a quantity of Seed and Feed Wheat, Potatoes, and Hay for sale cheap for cash.
Apply to JOHN WILSON,
Sec. 32, 17, 15.

FOR SALE.
R. GRAMHAM is bringing from Saskatoon to Qu'Appelle, on or about the first of April, one Colt LOAD of good young HORSE OXEN, which he is going to offer for sale at reasonable prices. Young cattle taken in exchange.

CHOP. CHOP.
CRUSHING done by a new crusher every Tuesday, on Sec. 24, Tp. 18, R. 14. Parties need not wait for their chop, as it is kept on hand.
CHOP also for sale.
21-25 H. F. BOYCE.

FARM LANDS
FOR SALE.

The North-West Lands of the Estate of the late W. R. THISTLE, comprising
4,000 ACRES
Of Valuable Improved
FARM PROPERTY
ARE NOW OFFERED
FOR SALE ON
Most Reasonable Terms.
For full particulars apply to
A. D. DICKSON,
BARRISTER,
QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

QU'APPELLE.

PRIZE REBUS.

$1000.00 IN PRIZES GIVEN AWAY.

Mr. McGilley has lost her husband, and is to be found on Monday at the above picture. The Prizes of the Ladies' Home MONTHLY will be given away on the 1st of May. The very best make, valued at $250.00, to the person who can first find the second capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $100.00 will be given to the person who can first find the third capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $50.00 will be given to the person who can first find the fourth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $25.00 will be given to the person who can first find the fifth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $10.00 will be given to the person who can first find the sixth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $5.00 will be given to the person who can first find the seventh capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $2.50 will be given to the person who can first find the eighth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $1.25 will be given to the person who can first find the ninth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.625 will be given to the person who can first find the tenth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.3125 will be given to the person who can first find the eleventh capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.15625 will be given to the person who can first find the twelfth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.078125 will be given to the person who can first find the thirteenth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0390625 will be given to the person who can first find the fourteenth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.01953125 will be given to the person who can first find the fifteenth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.009765625 will be given to the person who can first find the sixteenth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0048828125 will be given to the person who can first find the seventeenth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00244140625 will be given to the person who can first find the eighteenth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.001220703125 will be given to the person who can first find the nineteenth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0006103515625 will be given to the person who can first find the twentieth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00030517578125 will be given to the person who can first find the twenty-first capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000152587890625 will be given to the person who can first find the twenty-second capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000762939453125 will be given to the person who can first find the twenty-third capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00003814697265625 will be given to the person who can first find the twenty-fourth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000019073486328125 will be given to the person who can first find the twenty-fifth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000095367431640625 will be given to the person who can first find the twenty-sixth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000476837158203125 will be given to the person who can first find the twenty-seventh capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000002384185791015625 will be given to the person who can first find the twenty-eighth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000011920928955078125 will be given to the person who can first find the twenty-ninth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000059604644775390625 will be given to the person who can first find the thirtieth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000298023223876953125 will be given to the person who can first find the thirty-first capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000001490116119384765625 will be given to the person who can first find the thirty-second capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000007450580596923828125 will be given to the person who can first find the thirty-third capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000037252902984619140625 will be given to the person who can first find the thirty-fourth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000186264514923095703125 will be given to the person who can first find the thirty-fifth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000931322574611528515625 will be given to the person who can first find the thirty-sixth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000004656612873057642578125 will be given to the person who can first find the thirty-seventh capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000023283064365288212890625 will be given to the person who can first find the thirty-eighth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000116415321826441064453125 will be given to the person who can first find the thirty-ninth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000582076609132205322265625 will be given to the person who can first find the fortieth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000002910383045661026611328125 will be given to the person who can first find the forty-first capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000014551915228305133056640625 will be given to the person who can first find the forty-second capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000072759576141525665283203125 will be given to the person who can first find the forty-third capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000363797880707628326416015625 will be given to the person who can first find the forty-fourth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000018189894035381416320803125 will be given to the person who can first find the forty-fifth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000090949470176907081604015625 will be given to the person who can first find the forty-sixth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000004547473508845354080203125 will be given to the person who can first find the forty-seventh capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000022737367544226770401015625 will be given to the person who can first find the forty-eighth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000113686837721133852005078125 will be given to the person who can first find the forty-ninth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000568434188605669260025390625 will be given to the person who can first find the fiftieth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000002842170943028346300126953125 will be given to the person who can first find the fifty-first capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000014210854715141731500634765625 will be given to the person who can first find the fifty-second capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000071054273575708657503173828125 will be given to the person who can first find the fifty-third capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000355271367878543287515869140625 will be given to the person who can first find the fifty-fourth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000001776356839392716437579345703125 will be given to the person who can first find the fifty-fifth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000008881784196983582187596728515625 will be given to the person who can first find the fifty-sixth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000044408920984917910937983642578125 will be given to the person who can first find the fifty-seventh capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000000222044604924589554689918212890625 will be given to the person who can first find the fifty-eighth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000001110223024622947773449591064453125 will be given to the person who can first find the fifty-ninth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000005551115123114888867247979552265625 will be given to the person who can first find the sixtieth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000000027755575615574444336239897761328125 will be given to the person who can first find the sixty-first capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000001387778780778722216611994888164015625 will be given to the person who can first find the sixty-second capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000000069388939038936110830599744408203125 will be given to the person who can first find the sixty-third capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000000346944695194680554152998722041015625 will be given to the person who can first find the sixty-fourth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000000001734723475973402770764993610203125 will be given to the person who can first find the sixty-fifth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000000008673617379867013853824968051015625 will be given to the person who can first find the sixty-sixth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000000004336808689933506926912484025390625 will be given to the person who can first find the sixty-seventh capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000000021684043449667534634562420126953125 will be given to the person who can first find the sixty-eighth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000000010842021724833767317281210634765625 will be given to the person who can first find the sixty-ninth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000000000054210108624168836586406053173828125 will be given to the person who can first find the seventieth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000000000271050543120844182932030266895703125 will be given to the person who can first find the seventy-first capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000000001355252715604220914660151334478515625 will be given to the person who can first find the seventy-second capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000000000006776263578021104573300756672392578125 will be given to the person who can first find the seventy-third capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000000000033881317890105522866503783361962890625 will be given to the person who can first find the seventy-fourth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000000000016940658945052761433251891680981453125 will be given to the person who can first find the seventy-fifth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000000000084703294725026307166259454804907265625 will be given to the person who can first find the seventy-sixth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000000000000423516473625131535831472274024512890625 will be given to the person who can first find the seventy-seventh capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000000000000211758236812565767791686113701226453125 will be given to the person who can first find the seventy-eighth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000000000000105879118406282888958432806850612628125 will be given to the person who can first find the seventy-ninth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000000000000529395592031414444792164034253063140625 will be given to the person who can first find the eightieth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000000000002646977960157072223960820171265315203125 will be given to the person who can first find the eighty-first capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000000000000013234889800785361119804100856326576015625 will be given to the person who can first find the eighty-second capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000000000000006617444900392680559902050428163288078125 will be given to the person who can first find the eighty-third capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000000000000330872245019634027995102521408164440390625 will be given to the person who can first find the eighty-fourth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.00000000000000000000001654361225098170139975512607040822201953125 will be given to the person who can first find the eighty-fifth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000000000000000000008271806125490850699877563035204111009765625 will be given to the person who can first find the eighty-sixth capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.0000000000000000000000041359030627454253499387815176020555048828125 will be given to the person who can first find the eighty-seventh capital letter in the above picture. A reward of $.000000